MORE THAN 1.3 MILLION
HOMELESS CHILDREN

Hiding in Plain Site

78% of young people surveyed say homelessness was something they experienced more than once

54% say concrete supports (housing, food, transportation) and emotional supports are equally important

42% say they dropped out of school at least once

61% say they were never connected with any outside organization while homeless;

87% of those who were connected found the help valuable.

67% say they were uncomfortable talking with people at their school about their housing situation and related challenges.

60% say it was hard to stay in school
while they were homeless

Hidden in Plain Site

- Students who experience homelessness;
 - are more likely than their non-homeless peers to be held back from grade to grade,
 - Are disproportionately minorities, and LGBTQ students are heavily overrepresented in the unaccompanied youth population.
 - Reported that elementary 75 % performed below grade level in reading and math.
 - That number rose to 85 percent for high school students.
 - struggle with learning disabilities and emotional difficulties at higher rates than their housed peers.
 - Only five states – CO, KS, VA, WA, WY – now report high school graduation rates for homeless students.
